

The Chestnut Crabapple is a large variety, typically around 2 inches in diameter, though some sources mention it can reach up to 4 inches (fist-sized), making it bigger than most crabapples, with a sweet, nutty flavor and yellow flesh with red blush, great for fresh eating, cider, and jelly. ↗

Key characteristics:

- Size: Generally 2 inches, but can be larger (up to 4 inches).
- Color: Yellow skin with orange-red blushes and some russetting.
- Flesh: Creamy white, crisp, fine-grained, sweet-tart with nutty notes.
- Flavor: Hints of pear, honey, vanilla, caramel, and orange.
- Uses: Excellent for fresh eating, cooking, jams, jellies, and cider.
- Ripeness: Early to mid-September.